A Comparison of HSA, HRA, and FSAs

To help you understand the differences between HSAs, HRAs, and FSAs, take a look at the comparison chart below.

NOTE: This publication is for informational purposes only. The IRS releases limits and maximums throughout each year. Therefore, be sure to check IRS.gov for updates by the IRS after the date of this publication.

	HSA	HRA	FSA
	Health Savings Account	Health Reimbursement Arrangement	Flexible Spending Account
What is it?	An HSA is a savings account that is used in combination with a high-deductible health plan (HDHP) that lets you set aside pre-tax funds. You can use your HSA funds to cover qualified medical expenses.	An HRA is an account funded by your employer that can be used to reimburse eligible expenses. Your employer determines which expenses are eligible.	An FSA is an account your employer establishes that allows you to set aside pre-tax funds aside to pay for eligible medical, dental, vision or daycare expenses.
Am I eligible?	You must be enrolled in a HDHP in order to open and contribute to an HSA.  If you are covered by a non-HDHP, medical FSA, 213(d) HRA or Medicare, you are not eligible to open or contribute to an HSA.	Your employer determines who is eligible.  To receive HRA funds, you must be enrolled in your employer-sponsored group health plan unless the HRA is limited to vision or dental expenses.	You must be offered a group health plan by your employer, but do not need to participate in their health plan to participate in the FSA.
Who "owns" the account?	Individual/employee	Employer	Employer

Access to funds after termination	Since the HSA is an individually owned account, and not owned by your employer, you keep your HSA and all funds regardless of where you are employed.	Access to your HRA would be offered through COBRA.	You will be given a pre-determined number of days after your last day of employment to submit claims. Access to your FSA may be offered through COBRA.
What expenses qualify for distribution?	Medical expenses under § 213(d) of the Internal Revenue Code including over the counter drugs are eligible medical expenses. HSAs may not be used to pay insurance premiums except for (1) COBRA, (2) qualified long-term care insurance (3) health care coverage while the individual is receiving unemployment compensation; and (4) premiums for Medicare Part A or B, Medicare HMO, and (5) after age 65, the employee's share of employer-sponsored retiree health care.	Employers determine what the account can be used for and what is deemed an eligible expense. Please refer to your employer's plan document.	Eligible expenses are determined by the type of FSA you are enrolled in. Medical FSA covers 213(d) eligible expenses including over-the-counter medication. Limited FSAs cover dental, vision and preventative care expenses. Combination FSAs cover dental, vision and preventative care expenses until you meet your health plan deductible. Then it covers all 213(d) expenses. Dependent care FSA plans cover eligible dependent care expenses that allow you to work out of the home.

<sup>1</sup> IRS-imposed HSA limits for 2021: The 2021 annual HSA contribution limit for individuals with self-only HDHP coverage is $3,600, and the limit for individuals with family HDHP coverage is $7,200. Annual catch-up contributions for those 55 and over: is an additional $1,000.

<sup>3</sup> Employee contribution limits are announced by the IRS. For 2021, the limit for an FSA cannot exceed $2,750 per IRS Rules.<sup>4</sup> HSA, HRA, and FSA debit cards are automatically restricted for use with medical service providers and for items purchased at retail that are identified as qualified medical expenses based on electronic inventory control codes.

<sup>4</sup> Employers may elect to have (i) a grace period for employees to use leftover funds from a previous plan year to pay for expenses incurred in the period up to 2 months and 15 days into the new plan year; or (ii) a carryover of up to $550 to the new plan year for payment of medical expenses during the entire year in which it is carried over.

<sup>5</sup> HSA, HRA, and FSA debit cards are automatically restricted for use with medical, dental and vision service providers and for items purchased at retail that are identified as qualified medical expenses based on merchant category codes.
